Second Installation of the Podcast Suite on Joomla

Hey all. I would like to run two instances of the podcast suite on my joomla website. We will be running one podcast for the Sundays sermons and the other one for the Wednesday radio show. I would like to keep these feed urls separate and the organization of it separate.

Thoughts?

You can create two different podcasts by creating two different links in the Menu Manager to the Podcast Suite. The parameters on the right will allow you to select a specific section/category to podcast from. This way you can have one feed for the sermons and another for the radio show.

The only issue you're going to run into is that the Manage Clips screen will manage both sermons and radio shows. All of your media will be in one folder, so it might be advantageous to come up with a naming convention so the two don't get mixed up.

Other than that, you can separate the episodes out by using Joomla's section/category system. My church has a "Podcasts" section, with separate categories (and feeds) for audio and video.

If you do have standard Joomla sections and categories published on your site, you should see a dropdown there. If not, you might need to reinstall the suite.

Ok, I can re-install the suite. However I have a functioning itunes podcast running from the current install and I would not want to lose my existing podcast. If I reinstall, will I lose what I have?

@NTZCHN You will lose the settings under the Parameters button, but nothing else. Your episodes, metadata, articles, and media will all remain intact.

@mpaxton when you create menu items in the Menu Manager, those become the URLs for each feed. Go to the menu where you've created the separate menu items, then copy the URL for each.
